Virtual Military War Memorials — West Wales

A Summary of the Complete Record

This document is the merged record of twenty-one individual FindAGrave memorial ledgers compiled across West Wales. It contains over nine hundred verified entries covering military and maritime war dead from communities stretching from Goodwick in Pembrokeshire to Morriston on the edge of Swansea, and from the Gwendraeth valley to the shores of Carmarthen Bay.

The ledgers span both world wars and extend beyond them. The earliest deaths recorded fall in 1914. The latest fall in 2016. The record does not stop at 1945 because the memorials do not stop at 1945, and the memorials are the authority here.

The dead in these ledgers served in every branch and theatre. They died on the Western Front, at Gallipoli, in North Africa and Italy, over the Atlantic and the Irish Sea, in the mountains of Wales itself. They are commemorated at Thiepval, at the Menin Gate, at Tower Hill, at Runnymede, in churchyards across six continents, and in some cases nowhere at all beyond the stone that carries their name in the town where they were born.

The ledgers cover twenty-one distinct memorial traditions — civic cenotaphs, parish churches, RAF stations, naval memorials, Merchant Navy rolls, and squadron records. Among them are two Polish squadrons who flew from RAF Pembrey, Royal Canadian Air Force personnel buried in Welsh soil, and men from small Welsh villages whose deaths are recorded at memorials they never saw and in countries they never visited.

Every entry in this record was individually verified. No name was added on assumption. Where the evidence was incomplete or uncertain, that was noted rather than resolved by guesswork. The Commonwealth War Graves Commission database, the National Archives, local authority records, chapel registers, and newspaper archives were all consulted in the course of compilation.

The twenty-one ledgers and the analytical document that accompanies them together form a single connected record of West Wales war loss across the twentieth century and into the twenty-first. That record did not exist in this form before this project. It exists now.

These ledgers are not a closed record. West Wales has war memorials that have not yet been surveyed, names on stones that have not yet been cross-referenced, and individuals who served and died whose connection to these communities has not yet been established. As new memorials are located, as additional records come to light, and as further research is carried out, the ledgers will be expanded. What is presented here is the record as it stands — verified, accurate, and as complete as the evidence currently allows. It will grow.

Part of the Virtual Military War Memorials Ledger

This ledger records 63 service personnel buried at Llanion Cemetery, Pembroke Dock, Pembrokeshire. The cemetery contains the graves of Royal Navy, Royal Air Force, Army, and Allied personnel who served at and around the Pembroke Dock flying boat base during the two World Wars and beyond. Each entry links to an individual FindAGrave memorial via the URL and QR code shown alongside.

Among those commemorated are crew members of HMS Puckeridge, Dutch naval airmen who served with the Marineluchvaartdienst, Polish Air Force officers, and RAF aircrew from the early months of the Second World War. Thirteen men died on 13 December 1941 alone, a date that marks one of the darkest days recorded in this ledger.

St Iltyd's Church in Pembrey, Carmarthenshire, is a significant historical site particularly known for its war memorials. The churchyard contains the resting places and memorials of 39 service personnel including RAF aircrew who served at the nearby Pembrey Airfield, Polish Air Force officers of 316 Squadron, Mercantile Marine seamen, and soldiers from both World Wars. Each entry links to an individual FindAGrave memorial via the URL and QR code shown alongside.

This churchyard is unique in its international character. Polish officers lie alongside Welsh RAF sergeants and Mercantile Marine engineers. Several men died on the same dates in September 1940, reflecting specific operational losses at Pembrey Airfield during the Battle of Britain. The presence of an unknown airman, washed ashore in May 1943, is a reminder of how many gave their lives without leaving a name behind.

St Mary New Churchyard at Carew, Pembrokeshire, contains the war graves of 16 airmen from Britain, Canada, New Zealand, Poland, and the Netherlands — men who flew from the nearby RAF Carew Cheriton and died in its service. The churchyard is a remarkable gathering of nations united by a shared sky over Pembrokeshire.

Four Royal Canadian Air Force officers lie here, alongside Dutch naval airmen of the Marineluchvaartdienst who lost their lives on 25 February 1941 — three men from the same crew on the same day. Polish aircrew, a New Zealander, and RAF pilots complete the roll. Each entry links to an individual FindAGrave memorial via the URL and QR code shown alongside.

St Mary's Church, Kidwelly, stands at the heart of one of the oldest towns in Wales, its origins stretching back to the Norman period. The churchyard holds the graves of four servicemen from the First World War, each buried in the town they called home. These are the men who came back to Kidwelly soil — unlike the many from the same community whose names appear on the Kidwelly War Memorial but who rest in foreign fields.

Each entry links to an individual FindAGrave memorial via the URL and QR code shown alongside. Together with the Kidwelly War Memorial ledger, this record forms a complete picture of the local military dead from the Great War.

Part of the Virtual Military War Memorials Ledger

This ledger records 29 service personnel from Trimsaran, Carmarthenshire, who gave their lives in the First and Second World Wars. Trimsaran was a mining village whose men served overwhelmingly in the Welsh Regiment and South Wales Borderers. Each entry links to an individual FindAGrave memorial via the URL and QR code shown alongside.

Those commemorated rest in burial grounds across France, Belgium, Germany, Italy, Iraq, the Netherlands, and Wales. The losses at Passchendaele, the Somme, and in the final advance of 1918 all mark this ledger. Several men share surnames — Evans, Jones, Williams — reflecting the tight community from which they came.

RAF Pembrey Memorials

FindAGrave Virtual Cemetery Ledger

45 Memorials

Compiled by Graham Tudor Emmanuel

Virtual Cemetery

<https://www.findagrave.com/virtual-cemetery/1843718>

Part of the Virtual Military War Memorials Ledger

RAF Pembrey was a front-line fighter and training station on the Carmarthenshire coast, active throughout the Second World War. This ledger records 45 memorials associated with the airfield and its personnel — RAF aircrew, Polish Air Force officers of 316 Squadron, Fleet Air Arm officers, and support personnel — most of whom rest in St. Illtyd's Churchyard, Pembrey, or on the great air force memorials at Runnymede and beyond.

The airfield saw intense activity during the Battle of Britain in 1940, and several men in this ledger died in that critical period. Polish airmen flew and died here alongside their British counterparts, creating an international community of the fallen. Each entry links to an individual FindAGrave memorial via the URL and QR code shown alongside.

Virtual Cemetery

Part of the Virtual Military War Memorials Ledger

This ledger records 283 RAF and Allied aircrew from the Wings of War Wales project — men who flew from Welsh airfields or whose connection to Wales was documented in crash site research across the country. The memorial records span both World Wars and represent aircrew of multiple nationalities including British, Canadian, Australian, and New Zealand airmen.

The majority of those with no known grave are commemorated on the Runnymede Memorial, Surrey, which records over 20,000 airmen who were lost on operations from United Kingdom bases and have no known grave. Each entry in this ledger links to an individual FindAGrave memorial via the URL and QR code shown alongside, where GPS crash site coordinates and biographical details are held.

Royal Canadian Air Force Wales

FindAGrave Virtual Cemetery Ledger

32 Memorials

Compiled by Graham Tudor Emmanuel

Virtual Cemetery

Part of the Virtual Military War Memorials Ledger

This ledger records 32 Royal Canadian Air Force personnel who flew from or were connected to Welsh airfields during the Second World War. Canadian aircrew were a significant presence at stations including RAF Carew Cheriton, RAF Pembrey, and across Wales during training and operational sorties. Many have no known grave and are commemorated on the Runnymede Memorial, Surrey.

Five Canadians lie in St Mary New Churchyard, Carew, Pembrokeshire — among the most international of Welsh war graves plots, where Canadian, Dutch, Polish, New Zealand and British airmen rest together. Each entry links to an individual FindAGrave memorial via the URL and QR code shown alongside.

Part of the Virtual Military War Memorials Ledger

No. 304 Polish Bomber Squadron — the Silesian Land Squadron of Prince Jozef Poniatowski — was formed in 1940 and flew anti-submarine and maritime patrol operations over the Irish Sea and Bay of Biscay from Welsh bases including RAF Pembrey and RAF Dale. Their losses over the sea left many with no known grave, remembered on the Runnymede Memorial in Surrey.

Several 304 Squadron officers are buried in Welsh churchyards — at St. Illtyd's Pembrey, St Mary Carew, and Llanion Pembroke Dock — where Polish names sit alongside Welsh, British, Canadian, and Dutch ones in some of the most international war graves plots in Wales. Each entry links to an individual FindAGrave memorial via the URL and QR code shown alongside.

No. 316 Polish Fighter Squadron — the City of Warsaw Fighter Squadron — was a Polish Air Force unit that flew from Welsh bases during the Second World War. This ledger records 8 Polish officers and airmen connected to 316 Squadron whose memorials are held on FindAGrave. Several rest in St. Illtyd's Churchyard, Pembrey, and at Llanion Cemetery, Pembroke Dock.

These men left Poland after its fall in 1939, reformed in France, and came to Britain to continue the fight. They flew over Welsh skies, were buried in Welsh soil, and are remembered here as part of the permanent record of Wales in the Second World War. Each entry links to an individual FindAGrave memorial via the URL and QR code shown alongside.

Part of the Virtual Military War Memorials Ledger

This ledger records 5 Polish Air Force personnel of No. 304 Squadron who are buried at Milltown Cemetery, Belfast. These men died on operations from bases in the north of Ireland and were brought to rest in this Catholic cemetery — far from Poland, far from Wales, but part of the same story of Polish airmen flying and dying in Allied service over the Atlantic and Irish Sea.

Their loss dates cluster tightly — April and August 1943 — reflecting specific operational sorties from which their aircraft did not return. Each entry links to an individual FindAGrave memorial via the URL and QR code shown alongside.

Part of the Virtual Military War Memorials Ledger

This ledger records 21 Polish Air Force personnel of No. 304 Squadron buried at Newark-on-Trent Cemetery, Nottinghamshire. Newark was a significant Polish Air Force burial site — men who died on operations over the Atlantic and Irish Sea from Welsh and Irish bases were brought here for burial, creating one of the largest concentrations of Polish aircrew graves in England.

The loss dates tell the operational story directly — 23 April 1942, 9 July 1942, 17 October 1942, 3 December 1942, 6 August 1943 — each date a sortie that cost lives. Each entry links to an individual FindAGrave memorial via the URL and QR code shown alongside.

32 Memorials

Compiled by Graham Tudor Emmanuel

Virtual Cemetery

<https://www.findagrave.com/virtual-cemetery/1843726>

Part of the Virtual Military War Memorials Ledger

This ledger records 32 Royal Navy and naval personnel from Llanelli and the surrounding district. The sea claimed these men across both World Wars — from the submarine G-7 lost in 1918 to the destroyers and convoys of the Second World War. Plymouth Naval Memorial carries the majority of their names, a panel reference the only marker where no body was ever recovered.

The Plymouth memorial alone holds names from Llanelli, Kidwelly, Burry Port and the surrounding villages — a community's relationship with the Royal Navy recorded in stone on the Devon coast. Each entry links to an individual FindAGrave memorial via the URL and QR code shown alongside.

23 Memorials

Compiled by Graham Tudor Emmanuel

Virtual Cemetery

<https://www.findagrave.com/virtual-cemetery/1843727>

Part of the Virtual Military War Memorials Ledger

This ledger records 23 Merchant Navy and associated maritime personnel from Pembrey and Burry Port, Carmarthenshire. The Merchant Navy had no military status, no guaranteed pension, and no uniform protection — yet its losses were equal to those of the Royal Navy in many theatres. Tower Hill Memorial in London carries most of these names, the civilian dead remembered alongside the naval dead on the same stone.

Among those recorded here are engineers, radio officers, deck hands, firemen, surgeons, stewards, and a donkeyman — the full range of men who kept the ships moving and paid for it with their lives. Two civilian women from a munitions-related workplace are also recorded, a reminder that the war at sea reached the home front directly. Each entry links to an individual FindAGrave memorial via the URL and QR code shown alongside.

Virtual Military War Memorials — West Wales

A Summary of the Complete Record

This document is the merged record of twenty-one individual FindAGrave memorial ledgers compiled across West Wales. It contains over nine hundred verified entries covering military and maritime war dead from communities stretching from Goodwick in Pembrokeshire to Morriston on the edge of Swansea, and from the Gwendraeth valley to the shores of Carmarthen Bay.

The ledgers span both world wars and extend beyond them. The earliest deaths recorded fall in 1914. The latest fall in 2016. The record does not stop at 1945 because the memorials do not stop at 1945, and the memorials are the authority here.

The dead in these ledgers served in every branch and theatre. They died on the Western Front, at Gallipoli, in North Africa and Italy, over the Atlantic and the Irish Sea, in the mountains of Wales itself. They are commemorated at Thiepval, at the Menin Gate, at Tower Hill, at Runnymede, in churchyards across six continents, and in some cases nowhere at all beyond the stone that carries their name in the town where they were born.

The ledgers cover twenty-one distinct memorial traditions — civic cenotaphs, parish churches, RAF stations, naval memorials, Merchant Navy rolls, and squadron records. Among them are two Polish squadrons who flew from RAF Pembrey, Royal Canadian Air Force personnel buried in Welsh soil, and men from small Welsh villages whose deaths are recorded at memorials they never saw and in countries they never visited.

Every entry in this record was individually verified. No name was added on assumption. Where the evidence was incomplete or uncertain, that was noted rather than resolved by guesswork. The Commonwealth War Graves Commission database, the National Archives, local authority records, chapel registers, and newspaper archives were all consulted in the course of compilation.

The twenty-one ledgers and the analytical document that accompanies them together form a single connected record of West Wales war loss across the twentieth century and into the twenty-first. That record did not exist in this form before this project. It exists now.

These ledgers are not a closed record. West Wales has war memorials that have not yet been surveyed, names on stones that have not yet been cross-referenced, and individuals who served and died whose connection to these communities has not yet been established. As new memorials are located, as additional records come to light, and as further research is carried out, the ledgers will be expanded. What is presented here is the record as it stands — verified, accurate, and as complete as the evidence currently allows. It will grow.
