

GLENN WEBBE

HERITAGE

Glenn Webbe was born in Cardiff to parents from St Kitts who arrived as part of the Windrush generation.

Growing up as the only Black family on a white street shaped his resilience.

Caribbean discipline and humour became ways to navigate difference and understand the world from many perspectives.

WALES MEANS...

PRIDE HONOUR BELONGING

Cardiff was always home, but belonging took time to feel real.

That moment came when he was selected to play rugby for Wales.

Pulling on the Welsh jersey made it sink in that he truly belonged to the country he had grown up in.

RUGBY

CONTRIBUTION

Glenn represented Wales in the first Rugby World Cup, scoring a memorable hat-trick and standing among the world's rugby nations on the sport's biggest stage.

His path required persistence, overcoming barriers and quiet doubt to earn his place.

Sometimes the contribution is simple: staying, enduring and proving you belong.

STRENGTHS & JOY

Resilience, humour and perspective shaped Glenn's journey. He values perseverance, humility and the pride of representing Wales.

“

REFLECTING ON THE MANY CLOSED DOORS EARLY IN HIS CAREER, GLENN LEARNED TO REINTERPRET REJECTION: THEY'RE SAYING NO, BUT THEY MEAN NOT YET. ”
