GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY

THE GREAT TRIANGLE.

The triangle embodies the area served by the Great Western Railway, whose train services run over about 8,690 miles of track; with some 1,500 stations and halts. To give an efficient transport service in this area 4,900 locomotives, 10,000 passenger vehicles, and 100,000 goods wagons, with a staff of 117,000 are employed. In 1924 the G. W. R. carried 140,241,113 passengers, irrespective of season ticket holders, whilst 81,723,133 tons of goods traffic and 2,674,238 head of live stock were conveyed. The Great Western Railway is the largest dock owning company in the world.

THE AIR WE BREATHE.

Many millions have of unfortunate necessity to live, move, and have their being in our great industrial towns and cities, where the quality of the air leaves much to be desired.

Those who dwell or work in such congested areas should seek the purest of air when taking holiday. In fact fresh air is essential if that respite from work-a-day conditions is to be a real period of rest, recreation and recuperation.

Now the greatest of all curative medicines in the wide world is ocean air. Ocean air is air at its purest and best. Bounteous nature furnishes it in rich abundance along the thousand miles of coast line served by the Great Western Railway.

To each and everyone of the numerous coastal resorts on the G.W.R. system, come ozone-laden breezes charged with radiant health-giving properties direct from the broad bosom of the Atlantic Ocean.

A word more. From early summer to late autumn prevailing winds are from the west. These breezes reach our shores (having passed over no land areas) pure and unpolluted with the dust, grime, and smoke of industrial centres.

These are factors for consideration in connection with holiday arrangements.

GO GREAT WESTERN.

"Holiday Haunts"—Season 1925—is now on sale (price 6d.) at every G.W.R. station, office, and bookstall, or it may be obtained post free from:—
